The Norwegian Directorate of Immigration (UDI) is responsible for processing applications from foreigners wishing to visit or settle in Norway, for operating refugee reception centres and for deportation cases

You can apply to the UDI for permission to stay in Norway on a number of different grounds. Visit the UDI's website to get the latest details. You will also find information on how to apply, and which documents you will need.

Here are some examples:

Family immigration:

Do you have a family member in Norway and wish to live with them? Depending on where you are from, you can apply for a residence permit, residence card for family members of EU/EEA citizens or use the registration scheme.

Work permit:

If you want to come to Norway to work, you will need a work permit. As a rule, you must get a job first. The type of work permit you must apply for will depend on your qualifications and the job you will be doing in Norway.

Read more at:

Udi.no (arbeidsinnvandring)

© Copyright 2025 The Regents of the University of Colorado, a body corporate. All rights reserved. For use only by employees in Sammen på vei.

Asylum application:

If you are being persecuted or fear persecution or inhumane treatment in your home country, you can apply for protection (asylum) here.

Response to an application:

If you have submitted an application to the UDI, they will let you know when they have finished processing it. Once you have received a response, you can find more information about what happens next by clicking here.

Contact:

If you have questions, you cannot find answers to and wish to contact the UDI, you can do so by phone or email. First, click on this link and write your question. You will then be giving a phone number and/or an email address for the right department.

© Copyright 2025 The Regents of the University of Colorado, a body corporate. All rights reserved. For use only by employees in Sammen på vei.